Committee Activities

We want to make sure working on your reunion committee is a fun and enjoyable experience. Below is a list of committee activities and ways you can participate. You may select as many or as few opportunities as you feel comfortable.

Commit

- To attend your reunion on April 15-17, 2016.
- To make your own gift to your reunion giving campaign.
- To participate in reunion conference calls. We will discuss plans for your class's reunion and report on goals. These calls will help us progress towards our attendance and fundraising goals. We promise to be respectful of your time.

Involve

- Your fellow classmates in your reunion committee. With more committee members, we will be able to reach more of your classmates and ensure even greater participation in reunion.

Encourage your fellow classmates to attend reunion

- By helping us draft and edit your committee letter. This letter will introduce the committee and encourage your classmates to attend reunion. We want to include specific memories to get them excited about reunion!
- By calling and emailing your classmates, encouraging them to join you for a fantastic reunion weekend.
- By tweeting, posting on Facebook, connecting on LinkedIn – promoting reunion weekend on your social media networks.

Plan

- Entertainment for your class dinner. This can be anything from inviting special guests such as faculty or serving as emcee for the evening.
- Additional class activities. If our reunion weekend programming doesn't provide enough quality time for you and your classmates to reminisce about your law school days, you can plan your own event.

Ask your classmates to support the reunion giving campaign

- By helping us draft and edit a solicitation letter. This letter will explain the importance of reunion giving, which is vital to the continued success of Duke Law School.
- By calling or emailing your classmates, encouraging them to join you in giving to the Law School. We will provide you with the information and tools you need to make a successful call or send an effective email.
