

Ryan Clements is a Duke Law LLM (2018) graduate and will start his doctorate in juridical science (SJD) at Duke in Fall 2018. His research interests are in financial technology, financial product innovation, and derivatives. He's a licensed lawyer (Alberta, Ontario), with corporate deal experience across a diverse range of public and private company matters and also has an LLB (Distinction, First Class), and a BA (Honors, Economics) from the University of Alberta where he's also an Adjunct Professor of Corporate Law (Business Associations) and Entrepreneurial Law, and in this capacity he was awarded the school's top teaching award in 2016. He's also been an instructor at the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology in Business Law and he's published several trade and legal journal articles with a focus on corporate law and financial technology.